HOTEL AMENITIES: SOME THINGS IN LIFE ARE FREE IN CALIFORNIA

OCTOBER 24, 2014

Jane E. Lasky

Career journalist Jane E. Lasky has been chasing scintillating stories for as long as she can remember. Her work has appeared in Esquire, Travel & Leisure, Vogue, Metropolitan Home and a slew of other publications.

Hotels are competing for business more than ever before, especially in sunny Southern California. Enter that extra special amenity gifted by certain properties gratis. To be sure, those who imbibe are likely to go back to these particular outposts more than once after being spoiled with all these free and fun offerings.

For instance, at the prestigious Hyatt Palm Springs, there's a feature aptly called a Wow Cart that literally rolls past your room something like a hotel food truck does on the street.

These carts offer all sorts of great and useful stuff. There's bottled water (always welcome as often as possible in this California desert location), fresh fruit (that healthy option you've been meaning to buy but didn't), freshly baked cookies and fun-sized candy (for that sweet tooth), and even napkins and utensils (should you have decided to enjoy leftovers as an in-room repast but suddenly realized the food you have on hand isn't easy to eat with just your hands).

Meanwhile, at both the Hotel Wilshire and Hotel Palomar (both Kimpton hotels), expect to get your peddling on because the two properties offers complimentary bike rentals. This is a nice touch in a city where driving gets real old real fast.

Prefer to walk? Choose instead to pick up a map for your upcoming jaunt, free for all. After all, the City of Angels can be hard to negotiate for the uninitiated.

Another amenities at these two Kimpton hotels that make many visitors happy is their so-called in-room yoga service. This includes a yoga mat, fruit-infused water, dried fruit and nuts, and all the props necessary to do your version of a downward dog without worrying about anything since the right amenities for this sometimes difficult endeavor can be found handily at hand.

And finally, at The Hollywood Hotel, also in Los Angeles, expect a carefully devised (free) breakfast that can't beat. This is especially true if you're into eggs since a special station is operated with a clever chef who will make all kinds of omelets that pack the right fillings for your particular tastes.

And so, as these guest-driven hotels are at the ready with unique amenities that won't cost you a single dime, get a grip on these knowing outposts who realize how to please and do so with pleasure.
