This year's Tour Link Conference, with 600 attendees, a keynote address by Jack Healy, Founder of the Human Rights Action Center, and a broad range of sessions covering life on the road, accommodations and transportation, live event safety, and more, was the most meaningful and best yet.

And, it was a great honor for Le Parc to have been voted Tour Link's "Top Dog Entertainment Hotel of the Year" from among an elite roster of hotels that provide accommodations to performers, bands and crews.

This was the fourth consecutive year that we've been recognized as "Top Dog" by those in the entertainment touring industry: tour and production managers, house and stage engineers, audio, video, lighting and sound personnel, representatives from bus, private jet and transportation companies, travel agents and others.

We're grateful to those who voted, to those who book rooms and of course, to those who make Le Parc their "Home Away From Home." Most of all, we're thankful for our staff: our valets, housekeepers, front desk personnel, restaurant staff and all who work to make guest experiences memorable and rewarding.

We also want to let you know that our $5 million rooms' renovation project is nearing completion. Each of our 154 suites is receiving new floor and wall coverings, beds and bedding packages, contemporary furnishings including desks with electrical outlets located within easy reach to plug in personal electronics, new lighting, artwork and many other contemporary and sophisticated touches.

We hope to see you soon at a brand new Le Parc. To learn more about Tour Link, visit www.tourlinkconference.com
