

JETSETTER

8 Amazing Lakeside Hotels in the U.S.

Rustic national park locales, topnotch wellness spas, concierges at the ready to organize horseback rides and rock climbs—America’s best lakeside hotels will make you feel like you’re at adult summer camp. Get into the adventurous spirit and check into one of these outstanding waterfront properties.

By Laura Itzkowitz Jun 20, 2017

Mission Point, Mackinac Island, Michigan

Mackinac Island, on Lake Huron, is called the “Jewel of the Great Lakes” for good reason: the Caribbean-like aquamarine water, car-free roads, abundant natural beauty. Occupying 18 acres, the 242-room Mission Point Resort is one of the island’s best hotels, with spacious rooms that include hot tubs, a pretty lakeside lawn where you can kick back on Adirondack chairs, and throwback amenities like a observation tower and museum recounting the island's history and an old-fashioned movie theater complete with velvet seats. Don't miss the hotel's recently updated Lakeside Spa & Salon and the new tasting room.