

10 Buildings That Transformed From Historic Spaces Into Luxury Hotels

By Chad Chisholm Jan. 11th, 2016

Photo Credit: The Press Hotel

The Press Hotel — Portland, Maine

Once a bustling newspaper building built in 1923, the seven-story structure of the Portland Press Herald was opened as a 110-room boutique hotel in 2015. The entire warehouse district has been revitalized, and The Press Hotel takes its inspiration from the 1920s writer's offices that used to sit inside the building. Guestrooms include vintage-styled journalist's desks, local artwork and playful newsroom references. The hotel also boasts dock-to-table and farm-to-fork menus at UNION.