

Robb Report

A Cabo Favorite Debuts a Resort-Within-a-Resort Concept

Rebekah Bell

August 4, 2016

Pueblo Bonito Pacifica Golf & Spa Resort—an adults-only getaway in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico—is set to refine its resplendent offerings this December with the opening of the Towers at Pacifica, a three-building, resort-within-a-resort concept.

Housed in two separate structures, the high-end lodgings feature 24-hour butler services, custom-stocked minibars, portable Beats speakers, and aromatherapy turndown service. Six of the suites are even equipped with private plunge pools. Decorated with handmade rebozos (indigenous shawls) from San Luis Potosí, colorful works from community artists, Edison-bulb chandeliers, and black clay accents from Oaxaca, the accommodations playfully reflect the local culture. The awe-inspiring Presidential Suite (a 3,200-square-foot residence on the top floor) showcases two king bedrooms with bathrooms, private terraces with a fire pit, outdoor shower, and a hot tub; a fully stocked kitchen; and spacious living and dining areas.

In total, the expansive overhaul will add 47 rooms and suites, a VIP lounge, and a fitness center. A new restaurant featuring an outdoor beach lounge treats diners to sweeping views of the ocean. Advance reservations are now being accepted for the grand opening in December. (pueblobonito.com)