

Quiet Please! The 4 Hottest New Kid-Free Beach Retreats

When blissfully grownup R&R is the name of the game.

by Karen Catchpole August 19, 2016 • 11:09 AM ET

Ditching the wee ones — yours and everyone else's — is getting easier and more tempting with the opening of these new kid-free options on the beach in Mexico, the Maldives, Jamaica, and Saint Lucia.

The Towers at Pacifica at Pueblo Bonito Pacifica Golf & Spa Resort

Cabo San Lucas, Baja, Mexico

Opening: December 22, 2016

Pueblo Bonito Pacifica, already a kid-free Baja beach resort, will unveil three new towers with 47 new accommodations this winter. Guests in The Towers get 24-hour British Butler Institute-certified butler service and each suite features above-and-beyond extras like custom-stocked mini bars and portable Beats speakers. The Towers will also offer a new private gym and a new gourmet restaurant plus the Towers Lounge, exclusively for guests of The Towers, which will be reached via a dramatic sky bridge between towers (this may or may not be part of the reason there are no kids allowed).

Rates are $800 to $2,500 per night, double occupancy, including all meals, alcohol, most on-resort activities, and taxes.